

GREAT BRITAIN WINS the international six-meter yacht race series from the team of four American boats sent overseas to compete for the cup. Great Britain scored a total of 117 to America's 68 in the six races. Our picture shows the eight racers speeding along off Cowes, Isle of Wight. The Yankee yachts, the third, sixth, seventh and eighth from the left were the Grebe, Shelia, Genie and Montauk.

Right — GOT HIM BY THE TAIL and can't let go. Miss Ruby Miller playing in London in "The Edge of Beyond," some of the scenes of which are laid in the big game country of Rhodesia, visiting the London zoo to absorb a little local color, poses for the camera with a kinkajou, a member of the racoon family, whose claim to fame is the fact that it can climb its own tail.

SUFFERING MACKEREL, to use a popular expletive, what a whopper of a fish! A thousand-pound horse mackerel caught after a three-hour battle off Provincetown. Captain Mike Cuillu, a typical Cape Cod fisherman, stands alongside just to give us an idea of the generous proportions of his prize catch.

RIPPED TO RIBBONS. A tire from car No. 10, a British entry in the recent Grand Prix motor road race at Le Mans, France, after it had covered twenty-four laps. Judging from this picture, it looks as though the English tire manufacturer offered American tire manufacturers a golden opportunity. Jim Murphy, an American driver, won the race at the wheel of a Dusenber car.

SLEEPYTOWN'S PRETTIEST is all on edge, judging by this appealing snap made atop the roof of Atlantic City's Ritz-Carlton. The nervy good-looker, Miss Madeline Starhill, was recently adjudged, the press report doesn't say by whom, the "most beautiful" girl in all Philadelphia. And Philly has a reputation for pretty girls, too.

"BUH LIEVE ME, MISTER PHOTOGRAPHER, you all'd betta' shoot dis pitcher powerful quick, else I'se sure goin' to bust!" George Washington Simpson, one of the first stops for all sightseeing buses on Catalina Island, who claims to have the biggest mouth on the Pacific Coast—and there's plenty of them out there—gives a first-class imitation of a navy dignitary for the benefit of our cameraman. George can easily close his lips on a regulation size baseball. Kadel & Herbert.

THE ETERNAL FEMININE. An aristocratic Fijian, Adi Makenizi Betta, nurse of the children of Sir Cecil Rodwell, Governor of the Fiji Islands, arrives in London as a member of Sir Cecil's entourage, and revels in the advantages of a spacious English mirror as she removes the kinks from her hedge-like coiffure with a strong-pronged native comb.

"MIRRORS OF WASHINGTON" aren't in it with this mirror from California—it's quite the dernier cry with feminine members of the pseudo smart set on the Coast—and for why? Whisper—the hollow handle of this silver pick-me-up holds just enough for a single appetizer.

Right—WANTED, A JOB as painter by titled English woman. The invalided Lady Hope, widow of Sir James Hope, late admiral of the British navy, nearing seventy and unable through illness to carry on her social and philanthropic activities, and rebelling at enforced idleness, is advertising in Los Angeles, where she has been for the past year, for contracts to do interior decorating.

Left — ALICE AND DICK. Alice Lord, a mermaid of the Olympic team, shows excellent form while taking a lesson at Brighton Beach in how to clear the bar from her fiancé, Dick Landon, of Yale, Olympic and world champion high jumper. Alice, in turn, has been teaching Dick the art of diving.
